

World Water Day
2010
Clean Water for a Healthy World

UN WATER

water quality = wellbeing

Clean water is essential for economic growth and development. It ensures people's health and secures their livelihoods. People need clean, fresh water in all aspects of their lives, including:

in the home

for drinking, food preparation, cleaning, and family care on the farm

for agricultural production, animal husbandry and aquaculture

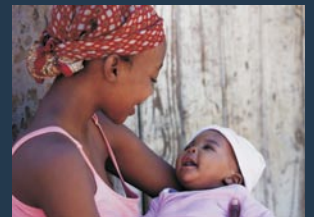

at work

for industrial processes and chemical manufacturing throughout society

for health care, public hygiene and security.
